Nehaj Fortress towers majestically on the hill of the same name above the historic town of Senj. An outstanding example of 16th-century military architecture, it is an important cultural landmark of the region. Built in 1558 at the height of the Ottoman threat in Europe, it was constructed under Ivan Lenković, leader of the Uskoks. These frontier warriors fought Ottoman expansion and later the Venetians. The fortress protected Senj and monitored the trade and military route along the Adriatic coast. Despite repeated sieges and attacks, it was never captured, proving its strategic and structural strength.
